Beyond the River,

There is a river deep and wide;
And while along its banks we stray,
We see our loved ones o'er its tide Seil from our eight away, away,
Where are they sped—they who return
No more to glad our longing eyes ?
They've passed from life's contracted bourne,
To land unseen, unknown, that lies

Beyond the river.

Tis hid from view but we may guess thow heautiful that rolm must be; For gleamings of its leveliness, In visions granted, oft we see The very clouds that n'er it throw Their voil, unraised for mortal sight, With gold and purple tintings glow, Reflected from the glorious light Beyond the river,

And gentle airs, so sweet, so calm,
Steal sometimes from that viewless aphere.
The mourner feels their breath of balin, And soothed sorrow dries the tear.

And sometimes list ning ear may gain,
Entrenching sound that hither floats: The ocho of a distant strain, "Of harps' and voices! blended notes,

Beyond the river.

There are loved ones in their rest ; They've crossed Time's river -now no mo: They heed the bubbles on its breast, Nor feel the storms that sweet its shore. But there pure love can live, can last-They look for us their home to share : When we in turn away have passed, What joyful greeting wait us thero, Beyond the river.

LITERATURE,

Neal Mogowk and Peter Mulrooney.

Some time ago I was pleasantly surprised by receiving a visit from Harry Stauley, an old and valued friend of mine, who owns a noble plantation some ten miles distant from my residence. He had ridden across, as country-folks often do, not so much because of any particular business he had with me, as to have politics, and those lesser matters of common interest to both. As I had not seen Harry for several months, owing to the illness of Mrs. Stanley, his visit was even more than usually agreeable to me, inasmuch as it proved that my old college clium was still the same frank, easy, warm-hearted fellow as ever. My first question naturally touched upon the health of Mrs. Stanley, which I was gratified to learn had greatly improved of late. Afterwards we fell into a social confab, and when the new er topics of the day were exhausted, Harry strolled with me around the farm, noting with a practiced eye the growing grain, and speculating upon the probabilities of a bountiful harvest. Having extended our walk across the fields, we took to the hills beyond, and at length seated ourselves beneath a fine old chestnut-tree, from whence there was a nobler prospect of the surrounding country. Taking a cigar from a case he was accustomed to carry in his pocket, my friend proceeded leisurely to light it; and, when this feat was accomplished, and a few wiffs had been taken in silence, all at once, and to my great surprise, he suddenly broke out with, "I say Urban, do you know anything of one Peter 6m13 Mulrooney ?" " Why do you ask !" said I.

"O nothing; only he claims you as a warm friend of his, and referred me to your respectable sell for his character. I didn't want to bother you, however, at the time ; but happening just then to need a hand. I hired him at once, and I do assure you his character soon made itself apparent without any further trouble. After he had been with me for a week or so, doing nothing properly, I thought it just possible you might have discharged hun Agent, Auctioneer, Broker &c. Secretary and for some misdemeanor or other, and concluded to catecize my gentleman a little. " So you know Mr. Urban'Mulrooney?" said I.

". 'Deed, sir,' said he, ''tis proud I am to say that same; for sure there isn't a dacenter gintleman, barrin' it's yerself, in all Ameriky." " I am happy to hear him so well spoken of; but, if you were so much attached to him,

" Straight! Och, by the powers, Misther Stanley, ye may say that! If I'd swallowed a soger's ramrod, 'tisn't straighter I'd ha' been. " And the result was that, not approving of the widow's discipline, you ran away and

A NEW ANECDOTE OF OLIVER CROM-WELL .- We find the following characteristic anecdote of the Protector of the Commonwealth in an English paper :

Oliver Cromwell being afraid of cabals from the expelled family, thought it dangerous to permit persons, particularly noblemen, to leave the kingdom without leave. A young nobleman in the interest of Charles the 11 camo to pay his respects to the Protector, and solicit leave of absense from the country. Cromwell immediately granted the request, but said:

"Well, but let me see you soon again, an

RESERVE BILL CARRIED. - The Reserve Bill was finally passed to its third reading in the Assembly by a vote of 39 to 62. From Upper Canada there were 29 for and 21 ng inst the bill. It will be observed that a considerable number of the most devoted Upper Canadian voluntaries voted against the bill, hoping to defeat it. Their reasons for so doing are very fully detailed in the debate in Committee which we publish to-day. The great contest was upon the powers given to the Government by the bill, which were sufficient to prevent the country receiving any advantage from the Act. As it at present reads, the Government are empowered to determine who are entitled to slipends and what is the life value of these stinetids, and they may even commute with the denominations if the clergy consent to the arrangement. In order to preserve all this dangerous power, ministers utterly refuse I to put the names of the stipendaries in the Bill. In short, the act is so worded that Government can do almost anything without infringing upon its letter. It is not prothe member for Bagot; and because one of bable that the country will ever see or hear more of the prosent accumulated fund. It will be all swall well up by combinations between the Churches and the ministry. This is, for the present, the inglorious termination of a warfare of thirty years, waged by the voluntary Reformers of Upper Canada.

Mr. Morin, it is said, was so affected by the passage of the Reserve Bill that he shed tears. We think the question why Morin ried when the Reserve Bill passed would be exceedingly difficult to answer. Was he glad stoppe I for sounding. #### Another Step.

Advancement and Progress is the order of the day, -improvements that only existed in ed to successful practice; and while public improvements are going on around us, for the general welfare and convenience of the people, and steps are being taken to centralize local influences, as yet we have done but little in Newmarket. With this state of things existing, the question naturally arises,-should Newmarket be Incorporated? We answer positively, decidedly, and emphatically, Yes! and we have invariably answered it in the affirmative. The advantages to be derived are numerous, and well worthy the careful and attentive consideration of every well-wisher to the locality.

In the first place, the large amount of taxes we now pay into the Township Treasury for Township purposes, is a sufficient reason alone to require such a desideratum; but when compared to the general convenience and numerous advantages of being governed, as it were, by ourselves, the mere matter of pounds shilllogs, and pence, is lost sight of.

Suppose For instance, we now pay £100 for Township purposes alone; if that amount was spent-or even half of it, yearly, in making side-walks, repairing roads and bridges. and providing for public accommodition, together with the commutation money for statute labor, we would be far better off, and would Seigniories from other parties by purchase, the red-tapists and the etiquettists. Visions not be called upon every season to append our names to subscriptions for this or that local purpose. We could then have our own local laws suited to the requirements of the tions other than those defined in this Act .- American side, would float before John Bull's place, and they could be so framed as to form The Upper Canada members who yoted yea enlarged eyes, and the scheme would be voted a guarantee to public property. The inconvenience of adapting Township laws to the wants of the Village, and the consequent trou- Kerlie, and no others. Lost. ble in carrying them out, would then be done awny with.

Objections are raised by some, on the ground that taxes would be increased. This we do not believe; but, for argument sake we will Is not the money expended for the special voted with Mr. Wilson were only 15, viz ; benefit of the locality? The way the matter now stands year after year subscriptions are solicited for some local purpose, and if the amount was placed upon the assesment roll, it would only be collected in another fer.n. A'l then have to bear their share inatead of a part. But let us see what the figures state in regard to increased taxation.

Five Councilmen, say .....£7 10 0 Clerk and Treasurer, say ... 12 10 0 Assessor & Collector ..... 10 0 0

Total .....£30 0 0

This would leave us about £70 to expend for local improvements yearly, at our present rates; and when we get our Library and

School House paid for, the taxes would indeed be muderate-for the increase in the value of property and the rapid extension of the village would keep pace with the extra amount of funds required in future years. The expenses of the Town Inspector would not have to be has passed the Upper House, and only awaits borne by the Town-but by those who violate the Governor's sanction. It was thought sing .- Message. Mr. Hincks strongly opposed, all diging that though he approved of Mr. Young's plan including that for the Docks, he thought the proposal of Mr. Drummond to constitute the commission by allowing the Board of Trade to choose three members and the Government to appoint two, was exceedingly vicious in principle .-The Harbor ought to be a local work, or if not, wholly a Government one. He then went on to say that the Government, while he was Premier, had agreed that the Commission should consist of five members, -- two to be appointed by the Board of Trade, two by the Corporation, and they to choose another. This had given satisfaction to all, but it appeared every thing must yield before Mr. Young. In short, the Government was a pack of wiped spaniels.

Mr. Drummond said that the proposal spoken of by Mr. H. had been made up with a view to prevent the carrying out of Mr. Young's but we fear it is of no use. Boldly as she has quite ready to give the citizens a voice in the management of the Harbor, he thought it would be unwise to risk the loss of the service abandoned that route sooner unnicessurily.

DEFERRED NEWS.

The Lake Superior Mining News gives an account of a fearful storm on Lake Superior on the 3rd of October. The storm commenced about three o'clock in the morning, and continued to increase until it seemed almost impossible the estimute its force.-The most substantial buildings are rocked so as to threaten almost immediate prostration. The storm increased rapidly from about nine o'clock until at noon, and the greater port of the damage was done in that time.-At Ontonagon waves rolled over the pier head to n fearful height, and the wind being the lowest possible prices: to consist in part of from the northeast, the sea was driven into the Island, which is usually dry, in two hours. was c wered about four or five feet deep .-About 50 feet of the extreme end of the give away until about 450 feet was finally swept away with all on it. The total loss is estimated at about $15,000. The trees of the forest are blown down, and many of the smaller evergreens loft in the streets and lots are prostrated. The Presbyterian church just raised and covered is Llown out of position, and several other new buildings in different degrees of progress, are materially injured. The great difficulty to be apprehended, besides the actual loss, is the fact that at this late period of the season it is trade. impossible to make new orders for provisione with the hope of getting them filled; therefore many will be seriously disappointed in their winter supplies .- Guardian.

Yet another murder has been committed in the Western part of Canada. The Brantford Herald of the 28th inst., says; "We learn that a most dioabolical murder was perpetrated in the vicinity of Woodstock on Saturday last, the particulars of which, as far as they have reached us, are rather vague. It appears that a party were taking dinner at a house in the neighborhood o Woodstock on the above named day. Their conduct excited considerable suspicion, and it was believed they belonged to the gang who have lately been committing such cold blooded murders in this part of the country. An officer went in to arrest them, and attempting to perform his duty, one of the villians rose up from the table, presented a pistol and delinerately shot the officer, killing him instantly. The murderers are believed to belong to the Townsend gang. After perpetrating this horrible deed the whole party made their escape from the house. We hope to be able to give full particulars of the affair in our next."

ARREST OF BURGLARS AT DETROIT-A gentleman recently down from Detroit, informs us that a gang of six burglars was arrested one day last week, at a house occupied by a coloured man, in the outskirts of the city.
